

Mobile App Daily Granted Credentials to Konstant as Top Hybrid App Development Company

Mobile App Daily's oversight was imputable to Konstant as being quick and communicative to coming up with one of the best native and web solutions!

PALO ALTO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, June 12, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Konstant was never saturated even as the response to COVID-19 made things overwhelming. Even as we were in a sort of hibernation, we took this as a huge opportunity to reach out to our prospects via social media. We don't engage them; rather we ideate, validate, apply design thinking, and break down the problem to build a digital solution. We are here to entertain our clients and in the process build relationships and trust. We never imagined choking them off with hello bars, pop-ups, chatbots, newsletter signup requests, notifications, CTA's or more such planned/unplanned marketing efforts.

We work through the ideas brought forth by our clients, but it is purely our choice to sell what we make or create what we should be selling. We are capable of and intend to achieve. Mobile App Daily recently accredited us with a rank among top hybrid app development companies.

We prefer Hybrid/Cross-Platform App Development unless we create a highly performant game or similar application. It helps us to have an easier development approach, savings on cost, compatibility across platforms (Android/iOS). It requires a bit more understanding to mesh the solution together with the right device access, right performance, right development language, right hybrid support, right user-experience, right code reuse, as well as making use of a UI library to assist in the proper presentation of the user interface, those challenges are known and can be easily solved with the right hybrid app development framework.

It is a matter of how we curate and ideate our digital solutions, what tools and processes we use, understanding and complying with market analytics, tools in demand, available skills, the target audience, budget, the team's experience with the technology, keeping up with client's time zones, and incorporating sustainable development to move forward.
