

GHB Intellect Adapts to Succeed Amid COVID-19 Pandemic

GHB Intellect has taken multiple steps to continue services throughout the pandemic, without a drop in quality.

UNITED STATES, June 12, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- GHB Intellect, a San Diego-based intellectual property and engineering consulting firm, has undoubtedly witnessed the effects and challenges presented by the COVID-19 pandemic. Fortunately for the consulting firm, GHB is equipped with the necessary capacity to continue offering high-quality services to clients, while keeping both clients and internal personnel safe.

The safety of GHB Intellect's employees and clients has been a top priority. The firm has more than 500 experts spread across the globe. Hence, GHB Intellect has always lent itself well to working remotely in an efficient manner. Remote work processes and policies have been in place since long before the COVID-19 pandemic, meaning GHB was ready to adapt once the severity of the situation was realized on a global level. The intellectual property consulting firm's service quality has not been diminished, and there has not been any unexpected downtime. GHB Intellect has remained open throughout the crisis, and temporary closures are not foreseen.

GHB Intellect's "client first" mentality has entailed the firm to be flexible in order to meet its clients' needs. Financial, political, and procedural limitations have impacted GHB Intellect's clients in various ways. By positioning itself in a flexibility-oriented service model, GHB Intellect has proceeded to effectively serve clients across a diverse group of industries. "We are looking forward to continue providing our high-quality services to our clients for IP and engineering development, management, monetization, and more," said Dr. Ghobad Heidari, founder and president of GHB Intellect.
