The founder of Mortgage Freedom 65 Steven Lee recently released a series of statements where he talked about financial solutions for seniors looking to get the most out of their retirement. He noted that: "Canadians want to be mortgage-free as they approach retirement age and beyond, but the reality is that this takes prudent planning and the right advice to stay on track, and even then that is not always possible for multiple reasons. Many Canadians are retiring with still a small or sizable mortgage balance, therefore they are no longer able to afford the retirement lifestyle as planned, here at Mortgage Freedom 65, we give the opportunity to Canadian seniors to have the retirement that they always dreamed of." When people search for the best mortgage solution in Canada, naturally this will depend on individual circumstances - where over 65's represent a special segment in the market that requires a unique solution.
