

ScholarshipOwl.com Launches Student-Focused Fundraising Platform for Those Affected by COVID-19

An overwhelming portion of students lost their side jobs that were going to help them pay for education. Students seem forgotten in our current pandemic.

UNITED STATES, June 28, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- We're doing our part and already gave away 19 prizes, totaling $15,500, awarded to students that faced financial hardship during these difficult times.

The scholarships were launched in March 2020 and had such an overwhelming response that ScholarshipOwl has decided to create the first student-focused fundraising platform, the FutureMindsFund.org

David Tabachnikov, ScholarshipOwl's CEO says: "The struggle is more than real! We received thousands of heartbreaking stories from students from all corners of America, and frankly, it made me concerned about the future of our students. The future minds!

"I don't have the resources to help all the students in need, but what I do have is the technology. Therefore, I decided to build a nonprofit fund backed website to allow the public to give a helping hand and directly fund students in need.

"I am at the front lines fighting for students who have been left behind, and I won't give up trying to help these students until we have awarded 1,000 students a scholarship!

"I created the FutureMindsFund.org for you! Join me, because together we help thousands of students in need via our scholarship platform. A small amount goes a long way! Don't forget, students are our future, and they will solve today's problems. We need them."

Student Stories

"I went from working 20-25 hours a week to working zero hours a week. I'm slowly and painfully losing my mind." ~ Mariama, G. Liberal Arts, Everett, WA

"I am in the final two semesters of my Doctoral in Education program. I lost the needed income to be able to pay my tuition and, unfortunately, I don't have any additional financial aid available to me. I'm also a single mom of two going through a divorce." ~ Kimberly K., Doctoral in

Education, Woodbridge, VA
