National Conference of Personal Managers

I look forward to helping steer the organization through these very challenging times for our clients and the entertainment industry, towards what I'm confident will be better days ahead"

Burke Allen, Vice President of the National Conference of Personal Managers

Prior to his move into talent management, media, marketing and public relations, Allen was a Billboard Magazine award-winning broadcaster, consultant and radio station owner with companies including CBS, AMFM, Opus Media and his own Allen Broadcasting Corporation in major U.S. markets including Las Vegas, Orlando, Salt Lake City, Savannah, Charleston and Washington, DC.

He will serve on the NCOPM National Board of Officers and will assume the duties of long-time NCOPM member Stanley Evans, who will now serve as NCOPM National Director Emeritus.

Mr. Evans was a corporate executive at BBDO New York, a public relations consultant for Hyatt International Mexico and the public relations adviser to the Mexican National Olympic Committee before launching Los Angeles-based Evans Management, which represented celebrity talent including Broadway and soap opera star Lisa Donovan.

"For NCOPM, it will be the best of two worlds – the entrepreneurial expertise and enthusiasm of Burke Allen, plus the wise council and guidance of Stan Evans," said NCOPM National President Clinton Ford Billups Jr.

"I'm honored and humbled to be able to join the National Conference of Personal Managers Board of Officers in this capacity. I'm grateful to the board for their warm welcome and vote of confidence, and to Stan Evans for his many years of leadership. I look forward to helping steer the organization through these very challenging times for our clients and the entertainment industry, towards what I'm confident will be better days ahead", said Allen.

In addition to Allen and Billups, the NCOPM National Board of Officers also includes Executive Director Danial Abrahamsen, a New York performing arts manager, and Broadway, film and television personal manager Peggy Becker.

Since its founding in 1957, the National Conference of Personal Managers has been committed to the advancement of personal managers and their clients. NCOPM was founded by legendary personal managers, including Broadway and TV producer Pierre Cosette, Liberace's longtime manager Seymour Heller, Hollywood star manager George Grief and dozens more.
