

Global Asset Management Market Opportunities And Strategies, 2030

Asset Management Market By Type Of Asset Class, By Type Service Element, By Type Client, And By Region, Opportunities And Strategies – Global Forecast To 2030

LONDON, GREATER LONDON, UK, July 13, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The global asset management market is expected to decline from $656.9 billion in 2019 to $598.9 billion in 2020 at a rate of -8.8%. The decline is mainly due to lockdown and social distancing norms imposed by various countries and economic slowdown across countries owing to the COVID-19 outbreak and the measures to contain it. The market is expected to recover and grow at a rate of 9.6% from 2021 and reach $788.8 billion in 2023. Going forward, increasing the retiree population, increasing the wealth of high net worth individuals, rising demand for alternative investments, and rising ETFs will drive growth. Factors that could hinder the growth of the asset management market include rising demand for services provided by Fintech firms and COVID-19.

Asset management companies (AMC) are the companies that pool funds from clients, and invest the capital in several financial products such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds, index funds, and hedge funds among others, with the aim of maximizing returns. Asset management companies make investment decisions considering several factors such as clients' risk and investment preferences, tax needs, liquidity needs, and moral and ethical beliefs. Clients of asset management companies include the general public, corporations, government and non-government institutions whose assets are managed by these companies.

Trends In The Asset Management Market

Asset management companies are increasingly providing climate change expertise and are integrating it in their investment process. Physical assets such as buildings, offshore structures and transportation systems operate in a dynamic environment where they are exposed to short, medium, and long-term variability in ambient environmental conditions. Thus, climate change plays an important variable in determining the durability of these assets.
