

Military Robotics and Autonomous Systems 2020 announced as a Virtual Event

SMi Reports: Due to the ongoing challenges surrounding COVID-19, Military Robotics and Autonomous Systems in September will now run as a virtual event.

LONDON, ENGLAND, UNITED KINGDOM, July 15, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- With the continued uncertainty surrounding large gatherings in the UK, SMi Group have made the decision to turn the 3rd annual Military Robotics and Autonomous Systems Conference on the 2nd-3rd September 2020 into a fully interactive virtual meeting.

All attendance by military and government will be free of charge and other delegates can join for only £499. Register online at <http://www.robotics-autonomous.com/pr11ein>

Military Robotics 2020 - Virtual Conference

This means the conference will go ahead as planned, with the full support of its speakers, sponsors and delegates, but will run 'live' and online only on the SMi Virtual Conference Platform.

Benefits of Attending our Virtual Conference Platform:

- Live and On-Demand speaker content: Get online access to the latest strategies and case studies from your market
- Network with all event attendees: Connect with delegates, speakers and sponsors in real-time and have your queries answered instantly
- Exhibit & Visit a Virtual Booth: Set up your customized booth full of brochures, videos, and presentations

- Host/Join Meetings & Socials: Join preferred speaking sessions, host your own meetings and even host virtual networking socials with the inbuilt Zoom functionality

The brochure including the full speaker line-up and programme details is available to download online at <http://www.robotics-autonomous.com/pr11ein>

The conference will revolve around the British Army's five RAS priorities of situational awareness, lethality, manoeuvrability, survivability and sustainability, as well as cover other main themes such as counter-IED, deep learning, AI, international cooperation, and communication systems.
