33Floors, a leading Yardi real estate software consulting firm, has announced the addition of James Searle to their team.

James is an experienced application designer, database administrator, and business intelligence specialist. He also has extensive expertise in quality assurance and user training. Prior to joining 33Floors, James spent 9 years working at Yardi Systems in Santa Barbara, California. "James is one of the most talented report developers in the entire industry. We are thrilled to add him as the newest member to our number one development team," notes David Burberry, co-Founder and Managing Partner of 33Floors.

James will add even more experience to the reporting and data science teams at 33Floors, serving clients through personalized training, custom reporting, and strategic business intelligence design.

"I am delighted to start the next chapter in my career with the 33Floors team. 33Floors represents the very best in consultancy and service in the industry and I look forward to helping our company and clients achieve excellence," says James Searle.
