

Beth Zastawny Launches Personal Website

The new personal website for Beth Zastawny will feature news about multiple sclerosis and multiple sclerosis research

LUDLOW, MASSACHUSETTS, UNITED STATES, July 29, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Beth Zastawny is proud to announce that she has launched her new website. The website will act as a central hub for news regarding multiple sclerosis and multiple sclerosis research.

With 14 years of experience working in public accounting and 15 years of experience working as a CFO for privately held manufacturing companies, Beth Zastawny has built an esteemed career as a business professional. She is also a philanthropist, donating and volunteering her time to various nonprofit organizations.

After being diagnosed with MS in 2017, Beth Zastawny knew she had to act as an advocate for others with MS in order to educate the public on this seemingly "invisible illness."

Beth Zastawny's website features publications that she has spoken out to. She was recently featured in an interview with Thrive Global and an article with Incredible Things, through which she described the changing role of CFO in today's business world.

The website also features Beth's blog, which features a variety of topics surrounding MS, including a deep dive explaining how MS is the invisible illness, a list of nonprofit MS programs that make a difference, an explanation of how MS affects daily life, and more.

"It is very important to spread awareness about MS, an illness that causes an onslaught of painful symptoms for those who have it and an illness that has no cure," says Beth Zastawny.
