"You are successful when you're happy; you're successful when you can be yourself," said Tom Kalous.

"The key to success is being able to be authentic and genuine and being able to bring your whole self to everything you do."

He also explained how he believes we are using motivation in the wrong way by thinking that motivation leads to doing. He shared that it is actually the opposite, with doing leading to motivation, as when we start something, we are motivated to finish. He said that if you wait for motivation to come to you, you might be waiting forever.

Mr. Kalous further shared what legacy he hopes to leave behind.

"I hope to leave behind the idea that the most powerful force in life is love and acceptance. We get much more done by accepting one another, by accepting ourselves, and by loving each other than we do by pushing each other or wanting people to be different than they are," said Tom Kalous.

"If there is one legacy that I could leave behind, it would be that people would understand that the place to start is by accepting ourselves and other people for who we are."
