Global Home Healthcare Software Market is valued approximately USD 7.26 Billion in 2019 and is anticipated to grow with a healthy growth rate of more than 13.40% over the forecast period 2020-2027. Home healthcare software is a user-friendly solution that offers healthcare information with zero error which helps in increasing the operational efficiency of the doctor. Also, it provides home care agencies and physicians to communicate effectively to enable standardize care to the patients. Such solutions offer healthcare professionals with real time information to deliver superior patient care. The global pandemic of COVID-19 escalates the demand for home healthcare software due to the primary focus of government towards coronavirus infected peoples. Also, initiatives taken by the people and government authorities to reduce corona spread leads to the home isolation and self-quarantine activities which significantly upsurge the demand for home healthcare software where doctors can monitor patient's health from clinics or hospital and suggest efficient treatments to the patients. Whereas, emergence of large health issues to the geriatric population and need for regular check-up of ageing population, stimulated the demand for home healthcare software. Therefore, rapid growth in ageing population and need for instant check on old peoples driving the growth of market over the forecast years. For instance: According to World Health Organization, the number of people aged 65 or older is projected to grow from an estimated 524 million in 2010 to nearly 1.6 billion in 2050, with most of the increase in developing countries. In addition, presence of favorable government regulations regarding adoption of home healthcare software is driving the market growth over the forecast years. However, security concerns and growing incidence of data breach is hampering the growth of market over the forecast years.
