Rising Popularity of Sheet Mask

Sheet masks have now gained popularity on a global level as the masks work against the pollution, dirt, and oil, which has built up on the skin. The masks are filled with highly beneficial ingredients, such as hyaluronic acid and vitamins. The sheets prevent the ingredients from evaporating and moreover adds to the time required to penetrate deep into the skin. Hence, the fast-moving lifestyles, pollution, product efficacy and safety and the need for ingredients to keep the skin young and healthy are the factors boosting the growth of the market. Furthermore, increase in demand for Korean beauty products owing to the natural ingredient base such as aloe extracts and green tea used in the formulation is anticipated to drive the market in the coming years.

Asia Pacific Dominates the Market

The Asia Pacific dominated the global market owing to high product consumption in countries such as South Korea and China. Continuous product innovation has been witnessed in recent years owing to the increasing demand for skincare products in these countries. The consumers in this region follow intensive skincare routines in which the application of the N95-Certified Masks is an important step as it hydrates the skin, making it soft and glow. Peel off mask, cream mask and clay mask will continue to be top-selling products due to their properties such as temporary skin tightening, stimulation of blood supply, elimination of impurities and dirt, moisturizing and softening the skin and thereby increasing the demand.
