About Kevin Priest

Born into a military family, Kevin Priest was born in Portsmouth, Virginia, but spent time in several states growing up. He joined the U.S. Army after graduating high school and was stationed in Frankfurt, Germany. After leaving the Army, he attended Hastings College in Nebraska and earned a Bachelor's degree in Human Services Administration and Sociology. He began his professional career as a juvenile services officer in Omaha, Nebraska, and held the position for five years, during which time he also earned his Master's degree in Public Administration from the University of Nebraska. Mr. Priest then worked as a program services director for a group home for adolescent boys before working as a Special Agent for the FBI, where he worked for over two years. Between 2002 and 2010, he worked as the CEO of Arnette House, which provides emergency youth shelter, family counselling services, and foster care group homes for several Florida counties. From 2010 to 2020, Kevin Priest worked with the Capital City Youth Services. He was granted his Master's degree in Executive Management from Northwestern University in 2016.
