The Sanitizer Company Vision is to kill Covid-19. As a resident of Palm Springs/Palm Desert, California, she wants to kill COVID-19 in the Coachella Valley!

PALM SPRINGS, CALIFORNIA, US, August 18, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Anna Miller, a Southern California Coachella Valley resident, received the domain name "www.Sanitizer.CO" from her son as a Mother's Day gift in May 2020 during the pandemic. Within weeks she had a website selling high quality FDA approved liquid sanitizer and joined the fight against COVID. After sales started rolling in, she decided to take The Sanitizer Company - www.Sanitizer.CO to a new level.

The Sanitizer Company's Vision is to kill Covid-19. As a resident of the greater Palm Springs/Palm Desert, California area, she wants to kill COVID-19 in the Coachella Valley!

"What better place is there to start than with the homeless population of Riverside County?" said Miller.

According to Nature.com, researchers state the Corona Virus is spreading under the radar in US homeless shelters. Close living quarters and a lack of testing among homeless people across the United States threaten the nation's ability to control the pandemic.

According to The Desert Sun, in Riverside County as of 2018, there were 1,685 homeless. According to the 2018 point-in-time count conducted by Riverside County, 438 people were experiencing homelessness in the Coachella Valley during a single night that January. According to the Riverside County's 2019 point-in-time count, the homeless population in Palm Springs grew from 126 people in 2018 to 196 in 2019.
