

Just One Week To Go Until Military Space Situational Awareness 2020 Takes Place Online

Military Space Situational Awareness 2020 will take place as a virtual conference next week over 3rd & 4th September on SMi Group's Virtual Conference Platform

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, August 27, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- As the leading conference in Europe dedicated to space surveillance, Military Space Situational Awareness 2020 will highlight how a collaborative approach to space management and Space Situational Awareness can be built at a time when our orbital environment is increasingly congested with satellites and space debris.

With just one week to go, registration for Military Space Situational Awareness 2020 will be closing soon; delegates are urged to register their place as soon as possible.

Registration for military and government personnel is free and only £499 for other delegates: <http://www.military-space.com/EINpr13>

Taking place online on SMi Group's Virtual Conference Platform over 3rd and 4th September, next week's conference is set to be bigger than ever, with a packed agenda, representation from nations from across the globe, and the largest number of attendees the event has ever seen. The conference will be the perfect opportunity to network virtually with key stakeholders across the military, government and industry sectors from across the globe.
