“I live in the Niles area of Fremont near the Vallejo Mills elementary school, and we walk by the Creek all the time,” said Justin Sha. “There is a lot of trash on the ground, and I think we owe it not only to future generations but also to ourselves, and our watersheds, to make sure that we are good stewards of the environment.”

Sha has signed the Green New Deal Pledge. Sha has committed to using his office to champion and advocate for the necessity of a Green New Deal at the national level.

When he signed the Green New Deal Pledge, Sha provided that climate change is real, citing the recent wildfires and global warming. "The problem isn't going away. I will work with the people of Fremont to foster a better environment, implement more green technologies, and foster more incentives for the adoption of electric and solar."

On Saturday, September 19, in coordination with National CleanUp Day, Justin Sha's campaign will hold an in-person, socially distanced public cleanup event at the Niles Canyon Staging Area, Alameda Creek Regional Park in Fremont, CA. To reduce the footprint, participants are recommended to walk on over or to carpool. Participants are also asked to bring their own gloves and trash bags. High school students are eligible for community service hours.

The Justin Sha for Fremont Mayor campaign encourages all residents to consider participating safely in National CleanUp Day by cleaning up the parks in their local neighborhoods.
