PUNE, MAHARASTRA, INDIA, September 10, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Processed Meat Packaging Market:

Executive Summary

Processed meat packaging market is seeing good growth worldwide due to various factors such as urbanization, especially in developing economies such as India, Russia, Brazil, and China, increase in demand of convenient products due to the time constraint. Growing meat consumption across the globe has led the manufacturers towards more enhanced packaging solutions in order to maintain freshness and hygiene of the products. For instance, according to the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), per capita meat consumption worldwide is 34.4 kilograms in 2019 and is projected to increase to 34.9 kilograms by 2024. There is a strong demand for products, such as packaged meat, mainly because most consumers around the world prefer ready-to-serve food convenience. For example, in 2017, according to the US Department of Agriculture and Economic Research, the most consumed meat type in the US was broiler chicken, which was about 91 pounds per capita. This is expected to rise to 94.3 pounds per capita by 2028. According to the American Institute for Packaging and the Environment, around 68% of the country's meat was packed in 2017. Moreover, the that usage of environmentally sustainable packaging strategies is one of the key factors impacting the meat packaging industry. This is partly attributed to the growing environmental issues that have caused producers to concentrate on the usage of these packaging materials. For example, various supermarket stores, such as Poiesz, EkoPlaza, etc., switched completely to Bio4Pack compostable meat trays to organic meat packages. The tray, film, label and absorbent pad are all bio-based and compostable and are indistinguishable from traditional meat packaging.

The regional analysis of global Processed Meat Packaging market is considered for the key regions such as Asia Pacific, North America, Europe, Latin America and Rest of the World. North America is expected to account for the majority of the market share owing to a steady rise in R&D spending to include creative packaging techniques. For example, in 2017, food scientists at Oregon State University developed a water-resistant and antimicrobial edible film (made from two naturally occurring fibers) that can extend the shelf life of food with wet surfaces, such as meat. This film may replace non-biodegradable waxed paper or other synthetic polymers currently used in meat packaging.
