Cederquist first rose to fame on the hit HGTV show Flip or Flop and has established his flourishing company Steve Cederquist Designs. His approach to design and remodeling is refreshing and straightforward, connecting with his clients on a personal level. He's worked on many celebrities' homes over the years, including such notables as Jerry Bruckheimer, Nicolas Cage, Tarek El Moussa, and Christina Anstead, as well as the set departments for Paramount Pictures and Stephen J. Cannell Productions.

In June of 2020, Steve Cederquist launched his new book Get Out Alive: Surviving and Thriving After Drugs, Guns, Gangs, Dysfunction, and Crazy. It details how he created a successful renovation and design company, becoming a season regular on HGTV's show Flip or Flop, and award-nominated philanthropist. Cederquist wrote his inspirational and true-to-life story to help others by sharing details of his past, the point he knew his destructive behavior needed to change, and the steps he took to thrive in business and life. The book has been endorsed by several world-famous inspirational leaders such as Greg S. Reid, David Meltzer, and many more.
