

Knowledge Anywhere Introduces the Next Innovation in Corporate Content Distribution

Content Distribution System, Conveyor, Allows For Secure Access, Distribution, and Monetization of Courses

KIRKLAND, WASHINGTON, UNITED STATES, September 24, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Knowledge Anywhere is excited to announce its newest product, Conveyor. A smart Learning Content Distribution System (LCDS), Conveyor will allow organizations to manage training content from a single, central location and easily share access to updated courses with third-party systems. For those with corporate training, this new tool solves a variety of long-held problems within the online training industry. Not only does this bypass many versioning and licensing bureaucracies, it also allows for controlled access and distribution for content creators, who may want to monetize their courses, share courses freely with business associates, automatically update sent courses, secure intellectual property, and upload SCORM compliant material into a Learning Management System (LMS).

An innovative new solution to real industry problems – I love the idea of Conveyor and how it makes it easier to manage content that may need to exist in many systems”

Craig Weiss, Founder of FindAnLMS and The Craig Weiss Group

“After 22 years in the corporate training world, countless clients and coworkers have consistently talked about problems that Conveyor can now help solve. By listening to the people who know training best, we truly believe this product can help training professionals take control of their eLearning content in a stress-free way.”
