Samantha is an Actress and Founder of Fleurings vase jewelry. A line of earrings and necklaces that hold water and keep flowers fresh for hours and hours.

Samantha says she first started wearing flowers in her early twenties thanks to advice from my grandmother, who told her she should "wear a flower to make better tips" while she was waiting tables. Her Grandmas flower wearing advice worked so well that she said, "I created this 'vase earring' concept to keep a flower fresh throughout my shift!" Hence the name "Fleur" or flower in French plus Earrings = Fleurings. The line has quickly expanded into necklaces that have become widely popular as the original vase jewelry and the "lei you can wear every day" in Hawaii.

According to Samantha, it took time and determination to develop Fleurings from a "vase earring" concept into a marketable jewelry line and product that worked. She believes the key to success is continually "showing up" for your vision by thinking positively and taking the right steps and actions to bring your life mission and product to the world.

Samantha Lockwood was first exposed to the arts by her father, the veteran actor sci-fi icon Gary Lockwood of '2001: A Space Odyssey'. Her mother is a successful actress and entrepreneur,

Denise DuBarry.
