

Dr. Jo Jorgensen Stumps for Gold Votes in the Golden State this Sunday

Libertarian presidential candidate meets supporters, media in Anaheim, Sacramento.

SACRAMENTO, CA, UNITED STATES, October 7, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Libertarian presidential candidate Dr. Jo Jorgensen, who appears on all 50 states' ballots (plus D.C.), will be campaigning in California on Sunday, for one day only.

People don't need to be forced by the government to take coronavirus seriously. People naturally want to protect their own health and the health of the elderly and those with preexisting conditions”

Jo Jorgensen

Jorgensen will be attending a meet-and-greet with supporters in Anaheim in the morning, followed by an evening rally in the Sacramento area, reaching out to voters eager to hear her campaign's hopeful message of “Real Change for Real People.”

“California, like many states, has suffered under government's picking of winners and losers, keeping large corporate stores open while dismissing small businesses as unessential and claiming they are not responsible enough to address health and safety concerns in order to stay open,” said Honor “Mimi” Robson, chair of the Libertarian Party of California. “Dr. Jorgensen has talked about sensible approaches, where small businesses can employ sanitary and social distancing measures just as effectively as the large corporate stores, which have been allowed to remain open during these many months.”

“People don't need to be forced by the government to take the coronavirus seriously. People naturally want to protect their own health and the health of the elderly and those with preexisting conditions,” Jorgensen said. “While I believe wearing masks is a good idea, the government should not force individuals to wear masks against their will. However, private organizations and private property owners should do what they think is necessary, of course, to protect their customers, employees, and constituencies. That may include requiring masks, social distancing, or other measures.”

Much of California is still on lock-down, with many counties banning indoor dining, and schools being forced to use distance learning. At its events, the Jorgensen campaign encourages people to wear masks and employ social distancing, and they encourage those not feeling well to stay home.

Event details (times subject to change):

- The midday meet-and-greet will be held at Brewheim, 1931 E. Wright Circle, Anaheim, from 11 A.M.–1 P.M. PDT. Tickets required; admission runs from $40 to $450.
