In accordance with the principles and laws of the United States, recognizing the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the Press is the foundation of freedom, justice, and peace in the world. The First Amendment permits information, ideas, and opinions without interference, constraint, or prosecution by the government. Adopted on December 15, 1791, as one of the ten amendments is the Bill of Rights. The 1931 U.S. Supreme Court decision Near v. Minnesota recognized the freedom of the press by roundly rejecting prior restraints on publication, a principle that applied to free speech generally in subsequent jurisprudence. The court ruled that a Minnesota law targeting publishers violated the First Amendment. Whereby all Journalists in their line of duty, that is harassed whether by Individual citizens, Law Enforcement personnel, or any person who is intent on taking an action that might deter a reasonable person from participating in Journalism Coverage activity protected by anti-discrimination and harassment and anti-violence laws. That any individual deliberately engaging in this activity be held responsible and charged.

Bearing in mind that the peoples of the United States have, reaffirmed their faith in fundamental Journalistic Freedom and equal Journalistic Freedom and equal Human Rights Protection.

Protection and in the dignity and worth of the rights of journalists, and have determined to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom for free speech and the ability to do their job free from violence, harassment, and threats.

Recognizing that the United States has, in the Universal Declaration of Journalistic Freedom and equal Journalistic Freedom and equal Human Rights Protection enforced by the Supreme Court given journalists the right to work and engage in News Coverage of the greater public at large.
