SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, October 13, 2020

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Avid collector, Andrew Hawley from Vintage Rock Posters, announces his search for original psychedelic Jimi Hendrix 1969 Gunther Kieser "Medusa Head" concert posters. Kieser created one of the most iconic and enduring rock concert posters produced in the 1960s. He also designed posters for the Grateful Dead, Miles Davis, and The Who. According to Hawley, "Kieser designed nine posters for Hendrix's 1969 German tour. Kieser created two poster sizes for the tour, starting in Hamburg and ending in Berlin. The larger poster was 32 x 48 inches and usually wheat-pasted around bus stops, street sidewalks around the cities Hendrix was playing. The promoters hung the smaller 22 x 33-inch posters in stores and local establishments. Hawley endeavors to find posters for all of the tour venues in January 1969. He is also seeking original concert programs and the first print tour blank without venue information printed on the poster."

Hawley adds, "Concert information was added on the bottom and would change depending upon what city

Hendrix was playing. Kieser also produced a merchandise poster using the same image and a made-up date and venue - 15 1 69 STUTTGART. It was sold at all shows and is of no value. The concert posters used for advertising were much brighter in color and with a printed date and venue location at the bottom of each poster."

Gunther Kieser's "Medusa Head" Jimi Hendrix concert poster is probably one of the most iconic and enduring rock concert posters produced in the 1960s."
