

“The Skill Journal” Comes to Kickstarter to Help People Turn Their Skills Into Solutions

The Skill Journal is a New Comprehensive System That Helps People Organize Their Skills Using a Five Principle Guideline for Upskilling and Teaching Others

NEWARK, DELAWARE, UNITED STATES, October 15, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- To help combat the major issues facing the educational and professional development systems due to covid-19, The Galerie Media Inc. has launched a kickstarter campaign to raise funds for a project that can help teach people a system to develop their skills and learn Instructional Design for Distance Learning (IDDL). The project focuses on the development of two new learning & development tools, one is a multidisciplinary tool in the form of a book called the "Skill Journal" and the other is an Online Training Program.

When you take your skills out of your head and write them down, they become more than just skills. They become formulas, recipes, blueprints, scripts, systems, methods, and legacies.”

Hans Fleurimont

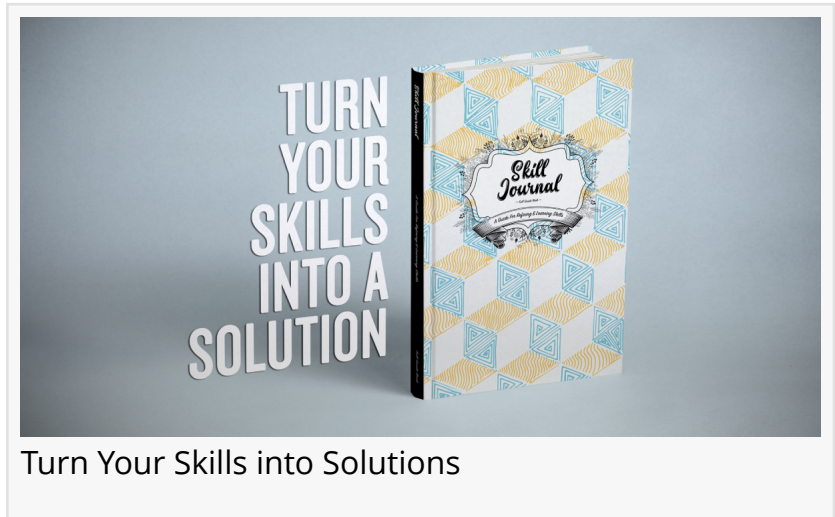

The Skill Journal and the online training program helps people discover, develop and document their skills with a guided system that breaks any skill down to five basic principles. People will also learn how to create effective online courses by learning the skill set of Instructional Design for Distance Learning.

Consistently diversifying his skills for the benefit of others, Hans Fleurimont, the Founder & CEO of The Galerie Media

Inc. and creator of The Skill Journal, is a husband, father, coach, teacher, mentor, public speaker, and avid kung-fu practitioner.

"When you take your skills out of your head and write them down, they become more than just skills. They become formulas, recipes, blueprints, scripts, systems, methods, and legacies. They become invaluable treasures that you can pass down from one generation to the next."

- Hans Fleurimont

Developing, defining and discovering skills is paramount to the success of any generation. Providing tools to streamline that process for success and help define the science behind any skill is a massive asset to individuals, schools, and businesses alike.

To be a part of lasting change through creating the leaders whose skills are vital to the success of our society, please visit the kickstarter campaign at <http://bit.ly/2CTUzjC>
