

Nominations Open for 2020 NSMA Awards

NSMA Members Nominate State and National Sportscasters and Sportswriters of the Year

WINSTON-SALEM, NORTH CAROLINA, UNITED STATES, October 15, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nominations are now open for the 2020 National Sports Media Association awards. Ballots were emailed to NSMA members on the morning of October 15.

Those members will now have until November 15 to make their nominations.

Each member will nominate three people in the following categories:

- His/her state's sportscaster of the year;

It's fun to see our members pay respect to their peers through this balloting. For 61 years... it's given us an opportunity to recognize thousands of sports media practitioners for excellence.”

Dave Goren, NSMA Executive Director

- His/her state's sportswriter of the year;
- National sportscaster of the year;
- National sportswriter of the year.

From those nominations, the top two vote-getters (plus ties) in each state category will be placed on the final ballot. The top ten vote-getters (plus ties) in each national category will be placed on the final ballot.

"This is an exciting time of the year for our organization," NSMA executive director Dave Goren said. "It's fun to see our members pay respect to their peers through this balloting. For 61 years we've been doing this, it's given us an opportunity to recognize thousands of sports media practitioners for excellence."

A group of current NSMA Hall of Famers will nominate which ten sportscasters and which ten sportswriters will appear on the final ballot.
