

Corrosion Technology Systems, Inc. Receives Sauereisen 2019 Global Agent of the Year Award

PITTSBURGH, PENNSYLVANIA, U.S.A., October 15, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Sauereisen, a world leader in the production of protective linings, coatings, and ceramics for industrial users, announced that Corrosion Technology Systems, Inc., has been selected as its 2019 Global Agent of the Year.

Corrosion Technology Systems (CTS) of Easton, PA, has represented Sauereisen corrosion-resistant materials in the states of New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Eastern Pennsylvania, New York, and Connecticut since 1992. Their activities in market development and technical product service continue to provide growth opportunities for Sauereisen.

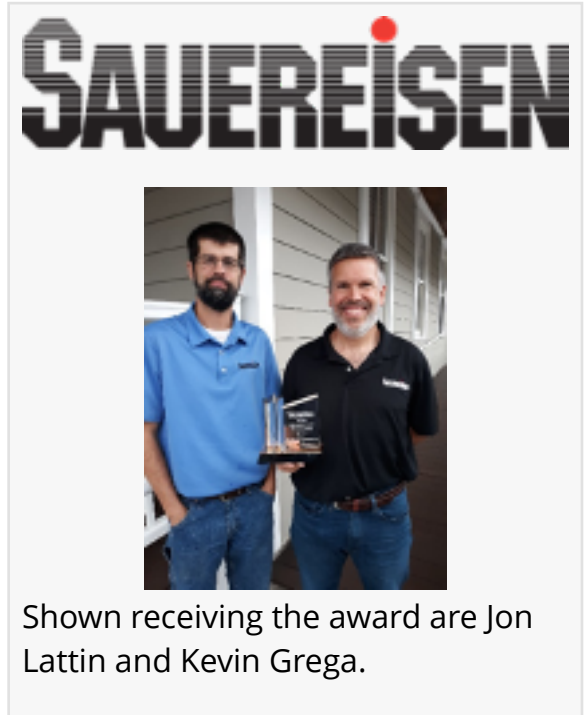

This award is presented annually to the sales agency that best meets sales objectives through specification development and expansion of new business opportunities in a defined marketplace.

"Corrosion Technology Systems has earned this prestigious award in three of the past six years, which is a testament to the exceptional support and service they provide to our mutual customers," said Mark W. Golla, Vice President of Sales, Sauereisen, Inc. "Kevin Grega and Jon Lattin of Corrosion Technology Systems, Inc. continue to be top-performing representatives in the Sauereisen global sales network, particularly with the rapidly growing SEWERGARD® product line for municipal wastewater applications."

"Kevin Grega and Jon Lattin of CTS have, for more than 25 years, successfully combined technical expertise, practical and product knowledge, and an exceptional work ethic. These attributes have enabled CTS to consistently place in the very top tier of Sauereisen representatives year in and year out," Tony Oswald, Eastern Regional Manager, Sauereisen, Inc. said.

Sauereisen looks forward to continued growth through 2020 and beyond, thanks to experienced and knowledgeable representatives like Corrosion Technology Systems.
