What is Propolis?

Propolis consists of the words pro (front) + polis (guard). It is a pre-cleaner for the bees' habitat. Propolis is a completely natural product collected by the bees from tree leaves, stems and buds of plants. The bees sterilize the hive they use. The bees first cover the honeycomb cells with propolis, then the queen bee lays his egg. This way, a healthy development of the egg is provided. Also bees put honey, pollen, and royal jelly in the honeycomb eyes that are plastered with propolis. So that the bee products are stored in the hive intact.

What is Royal Jelly?

Royal jelly is a very valuable bee product that bees secrete from their own bodies. It is used to feed the baby bees and the queen bee. While worker bees in the hive live only 45 days; the queen bee, fed with royal jelly throughout her life, lives for
