Ken Overbey's breadth of knowledge in finance, practice management and ASC management and his vision for the future is exactly what we were looking for at EmergeOrtho—Triangle Region.”

Mr. Overbey has more than 25 years of senior level management, including experience in ambulatory, outpatient, and physician practice operation management. Most recently, he served as Chief Operating Officer at Proliance Surgeons of Seattle, Washington, one of the largest independent surgical practices in the United States.

“For the previous 25 years, I have expanded my knowledge and experience with large physician groups across the country, and I am now excited to return to North Carolina and serve the community and region where I have grown

Mr. Overbey and his team successfully added nine surgical specialties at Proliance, including Orthopedics, General Surgery, ENT, Ophthalmology, Neurosurgery, OB-GYN, Urology, Podiatry, and Plastic Surgery. The additions included 34 practices, 21 ASC's, over 425 providers, and 2200 employees. Combined, the groups performed more than 85,000 surgical procedures annually.

"I chose EmergeOrtho—Triangle Region not only because it brings me home, but because the senior leadership team's significant tenure demonstrated the physician's commitment to employees and patients. That was an important consideration in my decision to accept this position. The physicians and executive leadership are committed to "first in class" care and creating a work environment where I believe I can best lead a successful team," Mr. Overbey stated. "I will build on the continued success of EmergeOrtho—Triangle Region as the premier provider of musculoskeletal care in the region, while also promoting EmergeOrtho as an orthopedic leader with national influence."
