NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, October 19, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Once the threat of COVID-19 subsides, the business world that emerges will be very different. This 'new normal' will see the workforce expecting a more flexible approach to the way we work

Condeco Software, Worldwide Leader in Workspace Technology Solutions, Releases Detailed "Back to the Office" Guidelines and a reduction in real estate needs. Large parts of the workforce will want to reduce commute times and work more flexibly. The office will become a place to collaborate and meet with clients.

To help companies understand what needs to be done to safely, effectively and efficiently bring employees back to the office, Condeco Software, a worldwide leader in workspace technology solutions, today released a comprehensive online guide detailing how to get employees back to the office and advice on how to successfully plan and implement a 'COVID secure place to work'. The guide can be seen at: https://www.condecosoftware.com/back-to-the-office/

"Condeco Software believes that a strong technology-based solution is the only way to effectively manage a safe return to the office, but the investment in technology will be repaid in productivity and an eventual reduction in real estate," said Paul Statham, CEO of Condeco Software. "The guide provides insights on how COVID-19 is revolutionizing how we work and view our workplaces, and how now may the time for companies to prepare their spaces where the employee is at the center."

Globally, different regions have varied health and safety guidelines, while team viewpoints on a return to the office also vary considerably. The guide addresses what these changes to our shift in working culture means and how companies can globally align their offices so that they offer a safe environment for their employees, including by: reducing workspace density, ensuring workspace sanitization, closing unsafe areas and responding to local outbreaks of COVID-19 and enabling effective contact tracing.

Insights available on the guide include:
