

Remotebond Launches Platform to Support Global Remote Work

The service is the ultimate resource to create a barrier-free landscape for hiring and working remotely.

EINDHOVEN, NETHERLANDS, October 23, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A service called Remotebond is launching a brand-new platform that supports remote work across the globe.

Remotebond is an online platform that brings together a global community of remote workers and employers. The platform enables users to post, and search for, available remote jobs – dramatically shaping the future of remote work.

“Now, more than ever, job seekers are looking for remote work postings to either supplement their income, gain income while traveling, or to test-drive a new career,” says founder of Remotebond, Erhan Karadeniz. “With the ongoing pandemic, I’ve seen a huge increase in the number of people looking for remote work and, as such, have addressed this issue with the creation of Remotebond. I believe my new platform will dramatically change the landscape of working and hiring remotely.”

With Remotebond, users are easily able to start working and hiring remotely to join the future of remote work. Employers can quickly post remote jobs to the site for just $25, enabling them to find qualified and talented freelancers from anywhere in the world.

“Whether you’re a remote company looking to hire, or whether you’re looking for your next remote opportunity, I have created a platform that provides a variety of jobs with new listings added daily,” states Karadeniz. “By promoting your remote work opportunities through the platform, you can reach qualified candidates like never before. Register now to secure your talent as soon as today.”
