announced today an addition to their portfolio of clients who are taking proactive measures to keep their facility safe from the Coronavirus. VITA, a skilled nursing organization managing 17 facilities throughout the Northeast, will now utilize the Strive360 Kiosk Pro to automate the sign-in and screening process at entrances to their senior living facilities. The Striv360 Kiosk Pro utilizes autonomous infrared technology to scan body temperatures and assess a series of questions to determine if its safe to enter.

"At VITA, the safety and security of our residents and employees is our top priority. We are implementing state-of-the-art infrared technology for all essential visitors as we are working towards full visitation for our residents and our families to screen for symptoms before allowing anyone to enter our facility," explained Gregory Strite, Director of Market Development of VITA. "Striv360 will allow us to handle any red flags in real-time, which gives us unique oversight for increased security."

"Our technology is customizable with specific risk factor questions, and communicates seamlessly to facility management alerting them instantly should a staff member or visitor require additional screening," shared Akiva Zwick, CEO of Striv360. "Our technology records and stores this crucial information in addition to general sign-in features, allowing skilled nursing and assisted living facility operators to have peace of mind about who is in their facility at all times."

The Striv360 kiosk also prompts visitors to share their experience upon leaving the facility, providing management with a true real-time look at customer experience. The technology prompts satisfied customers the share their feedback online to enable greater online consumer ratings, and with the facility to boost employee satisfaction. Dissatisfied customers can express concerns or issues right away, allowing fast resolution from management on-site.
