

Cobra Kicks Off Its Participation in the Fortune-U.S. Department of State Global Women's Mentoring Partnership

Cobra CEO and Team Help Mentor the Next Generation of Global Women Leaders

AUSTIN, TEXAS, UNITED STATES,
October 27, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ --

For the next six weeks, businesswoman and attorney, Phetogo Molati from South Africa will spend time working virtually with Cobra's Chief Executive Officer, Candice Corby, to enhance her business and leadership skills. The partnership leverages Ms. Corby's expertise as a business leader to support and advance women's economic empowerment. While under Ms. Corby's wing, Ms. Molati will observe best practices, develop management skills, and cultivate a network of global professionals.

Phetogo is a ball of energy. I cannot wait to see what we will accomplish together.”

Candice Corby, CEO, Cobra Legal Solutions

Their unique corporate relationship is part of their selection and inclusion to the 15th Annual Fortune - U.S. Department of State Global Women's Mentoring Partnership, a program launched in 2006 to empower global women leaders in business and pair them with top women executives from the United States' most prestigious companies and their teams for customized mentorship.

The goal: facilitate cross-cultural exchange to create diverse connections, equip international mentees with invaluable knowledge that they can use to bolster their own businesses and inspire positive change in their local communities.

This year, Cobra CEO, Candice Corby with her team, was chosen to share industry knowledge with mentee, Phetogo Molati. “Phetogo is a ball of energy,” said Candice. “I cannot wait to see what we will accomplish together.”

“The feeling is mutual, the journey of growth continues,” said Phetogo. “I’m super excited to learn from you, Candice Hunter Corby.”

Phetogo, hailing from Pretoria, South Africa, is an entrepreneur and emerging leader in her own right. Phetogo is the owner, founder and Director of Molati Attorneys Incorporation, a township based full-service law firm. Ms. Molati and her firm has a decade of combined experience in providing exceptional legal services to various companies and individuals throughout South Africa. Molati also hosts a weekly radio show called “Legally Speaking,” which educates listeners on prevalent legal matters.
