"Usually October sales of California small businesses outpace September but this year with the election uncertainty and the uptick in COVID-19 cases nationwide has given both owner/sellers and business buyers pause. Even though buyer demand is improving, small business sales are still staying neutral over the last several months. Hopefully with the elections over and with other economic data settling, both sellers and buyers will start to transact again throughout November," said Peter Siegel MBA, BizBen.com Founder and ProSell/ProBuy Program's Lead Advisor.

"Most everyone I speak with, both buyers and sellers, are happy the 2020 election will finally be over, and hopefully, the government can get its act together and deliver additional stimulus and PPP money. Many of my restaurant sellers are still struggling, but are optimistic, and making a greater effort in improving their business' curb appeal, outdoor dining, and making online ordering and pickup more efficient - things buyers like to see in this market," said Joe Ranieri, Orange County Business Broker, ProIntermediary On BizBen.com.
