

Fractionalized Trust Deeds Explained in New Website

Joffrey Long, Private Money Lender, Announces FractionalizedTrustDeeds.com

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, November 18, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "Trust deed investments can provide higher returns, particularly in times when interest rates are low," explains Joffrey Long, Private Money Lender.

Getting easier access to investing in real estate loans is explained at www.FractionalizedTrustDeeds.com.

A trust deed sounds great, but it's $750,000 and you don't have that amount available. By investing in a "multi-lender loan," (another term for Fractionalized Trust Deeds) you can place a smaller amount into a portion of the loan. Then, an assignment of your portion of the trust deed is recorded with the County Recorder, similar to when you bought your home.

At FractionalizedTrustDeeds.com, you'll find answers to a number of questions, including:

Trust deed investments can provide higher returns, particularly in times when interest rates are low."
