Group research on the Environmental, Health & Environmental \(EHS\) System market reveals that the pressing need to shift from reactive safety and compliance outcomes to proactive risk management is driving digital transformation in this space and should help drive market growth over the forecast period.

“The shift from reactive safety and compliance outcomes to proactive risk management is apparent as regulatory authorities implement reporting requirements focused on leading indicators of future success as opposed to lagging outcome-based indicators. This shift necessitates modern software platform architectures and Industrial IoT technologies,” according to Paula Hollywood, Senior Analyst at ARC Advisory Group and key author of ARC’s EHS Systems Emerging Market Analysis 2019-2024 report.
