Sean "The Beast" Fister has joined the staff at the Dustin Johnson Golf School

"Sean has traveled the world conducting more than 1,000 clinics for people to help improve their game. There is no one more qualified and experienced who can teach our golf clinics and schools," said Terrell. "Sean has an incredible passion for helping people improve their game, and he is the perfect fit for our goal of adding more opportunities for golfers to improve."

Fister is a coach in the Dustin Johnson Junior Golf Academy, which offers a developmental roadmap for young golfers ages 5-13 to introduce them to the game and hone their competitive skills along the journey. "From its namesake to its staff, facility, and technology, the Dustin Johnson Golf School is a world-class operation. I can't imagine a better opportunity for me to pursue my passion for sharing my knowledge to help golfers, from kids to seniors, improve their play in the game I love," said Fister. "Having raised three kids of my own, I am especially passionate about helping young golfers learn to play a game that also comes with great life lessons that will serve them well beyond the golf course."

Fister joins the Dustin Johnson Golf School after a decorated career of competing in the World Long Drive Championships, which he did 33 times. He remains to this day the only American competitor to win this competition three times (1995, 2001 and 2005), and was the first-ever golfer to eclipse the 400-yard barrier in the finals of this event when he accomplished the feat in 1997. Prior to launching his golf career Sean was a high school track & field star whose achievements culminated in a Missouri State Championship in the pole vault, earning Sean an athletic scholarship to compete at the highest collegiate level in both the pole vault and javelin for the University of Florida. Along this journey he set numerous high school, college and stadium records, some of which still stand nearly 40 years later.

To be a part of such a great facility and team at the Dustin Johnson Golf School is a dream come true for me!
