The best Christmas gift anybody can get is being able to spend time with their family. We have often taken this simple thing for granted. 10to8, the global scheduling company, has seen that care homes across the globe are trying to organise safe visits for families and their residents, and they want to help.

Since the pandemic, 10to8 saw a rush of interest in managing safe visits to care homes. Their software has been rolled out in hundreds of nursing homes and long-term care facilities in the United States and the United Kingdom. During the first wave, this let care homes safely organise Mother's Day visits for their residents.

After the first wave, the company has been working with care facilities to match the ever-changing guidance and regulations to keep their residents safe. Recently they've been working with care homes to arrange visits combined with rapid, lateral flow tests - preventing potentially infectious visitors from ever entering the site, enabling more and safer visits from families.

"This is just one of the new features that we've put together to help nursing homes and long-term care facilities be ready for safe visitation with an increasingly complicated environment." - Matthew Cleevly, CEO of 10to8.

Care homes are being bogged down by the volume of admin required to operate safely. Scheduling and coordination is one part that can be automated and can allow families to be together more often whilst protecting the vulnerable. The company hopes that by making it free for Christmas and into the New Year there will be more, safe visits.

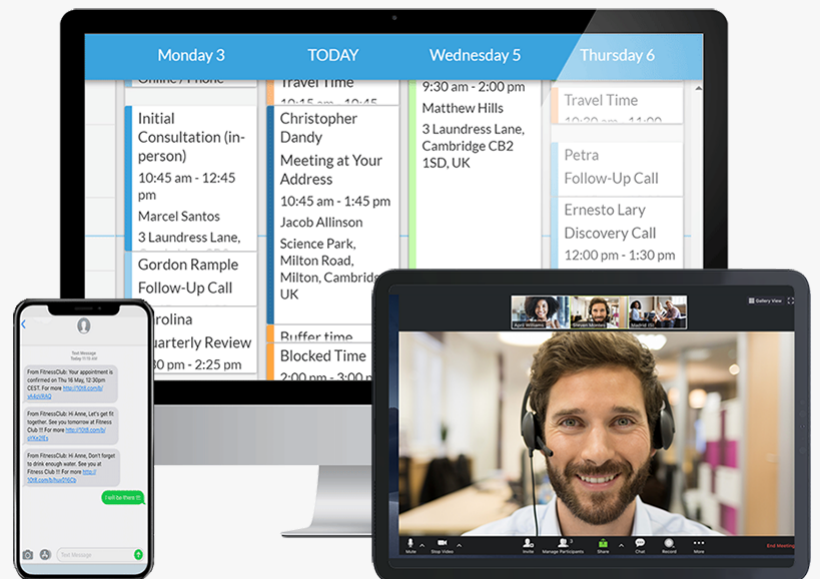

"We're always looking for ways we can help, and I hope that by being freely available for Christmas until Valentine's Day we can make a positive difference to people in care and their families." - Matthew Cleevly, CEO of 10to8.

Care homes and nursing homes can get in touch with 10to8 via this page until the end of December to claim the offer and can use the software for free until February 15th, 2021.

"Our software has been successfully deployed by some providers across hundreds of care homes in the UK and US and tens of thousands of businesses. We hope 10to8 can help organise safe visits this Christmas" - Matthew Cleevly, CEO of 10to8.
