The child and youth services market consists of the revenues from child and youth services and related goods by entities (organizations, sole traders and partnerships) that provide non-residential social assistance to children and youth. The benefits received from community programs for children and youth contribute to the growth of the child and youth services industry. According to youth.gov, young people surrounded by a variety of opportunities engage in less risky behavior when in adulthood. A study was conducted that for the first five years where youth are involved in the 4-H youth development program, they showed a lower risk of having social, personal behavioral problems, are four times as likely to contribute to communities and two times as likely to be civically active. These factors are expected to have a positive impact on the child and youth services market's growth.

The global child and youth services market size is expected to increase from $100.44 billion in 2019 to $102.98 billion in 2020 at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 2.54%. The low growth is mainly due to the COVID-19 outbreak that has led to restrictive containment measures involving social distancing, remote working, and the closure of industries and other commercial activities resulting in operational challenges. The child services market is then expected to recover and reach $125.88 billion in 2023 at a CAGR of 6.92%.

The global child and youth services market covers by service – foster and guardianship placement services, counseling and information services, social assistance services, children and youth recreational programs, private and state adoption services, others and by age group – infant, child, adolescent, youth.
