founders opened the bar along with the lounge “(s)triving to be the best whiskey bar in the South East.” As a result, R&R became Tuscaloosa's only Whiskey Bar. It is also the only bar in Tuscaloosa with 100-year brands.

The rich history inside this local cigar bar can be felt from the outside. Originally built in 1903, the Maxwell House is an historic mansion that was owned by the Maxwells. It is a true gem as it is listed in the historical registry of the State of Alabama. It is said to have been the first house in Tuscaloosa to have indoor plumbing and electricity.

The fine architecture and classic style of the mansion make it one of the most unique venues in and around Tuscaloosa. The expansive southern style wrap-around porch with the grandiose white columns is the highlight of the building. All of the woodwork inside the mansion is original, including the columns and floors. There are multiple cigar lounge areas throughout the first and second levels.

The Black Warrior is one of two exclusive brands featured at the lounge. Its name pays homage to the city of Tuscaloosa as Chief Tuscaloosa was a paramount chief of a Mississippian chiefdom in what is now the U.S. state of Alabama. In 2012, one of the founders of R & R Cigars visited the Rocky Patel Factory in Honduras. While he was there, the factory made him a signature blend. This blend was named The Black Warrior. The second exclusive brand, the Casa de las Estrellas, is a milder version.

Customers can enjoy the comfort of this unique local cigar bar while remaining safe. The mansion is expansive and has plenty of room for social distancing.
