The Europe Cleanroom Disposable Gloves Market was valued at $180 million in 2015 and is estimated to reach $318 million by 2022.

5933 NE WIN SIVERS DRIVE, #205, PORTLAND, OR 97220, UNITED STATES, December 16, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Europe Cleanroom Disposable Gloves Market Report, published by Allied Market Research, forecasts that the market was $180 million in 2015 and is expected to reach $318 million by 2022, registering a CAGR of 8.6% during the period 2016 - 2022. Semiconductors industry is expected to remain the dominating segment throughout the forecast period.

A gradual rise in stringent regulations across various industries such as pharmaceuticals and semiconductors boosts the adoption of cleanroom disposable gloves, thereby driving the market. Europe is considered as one of the leading economies for technological development in all the fields, such as pharmaceuticals, semiconductors and electronics. Thus, the increase in cleanroom spaces across industries has resulted in the need for extensive technological advancements in cleanrooms consumables; such as, advancements in wide range of gloves with improved qualities as per the area of usage. In addition, numerous applications across the pharmaceutical industry include enzyme, vaccine production, large and small parenteral volumes. Adoption of industrial robots and volatility of raw material prices would moderately restrain the growth of cleanroom disposable gloves market in the coming years.

Natural rubber gloves dominated the European cleanroom disposable gloves market with major revenue contribution. However, neoprene gloves are anticipated to grow at the highest CAGR of 10.9% from 2016 to 2022 owing to their increasing adoption due to advanced features favorable for use across diverse applications. Semiconductor industry accounted for the largest share of the market revenue in 2015, and is anticipated to grow at a CAGR of 8.2%.
