Over the four-year period, approximately 636.000 exams will be delivered to students attending around 330 universities in France including overseas territories. French students will have the opportunity to sit regulated Written tests in Reading, Listening & Writing to certify B2, C1 and C2 levels of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).

Paper-based and computer-based exams are delivered through LanguageCert’s global network of approved Test Centres, which is rigorously audited against high security standards to ensure the quality of their exam administration processes. Students also have the option to sit their high-stakes exams remotely by taking a LanguageCert Online exam with remote, live
