

Nathan Owens: Batwoman Co-Star Comes 'Home for the Holidays'

As 2020 draws to a close, viewers are greeted with a holiday lineup of movies to provide them with an escape as families spend more time together at home.

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, UNITES STATES , December 30, 2020 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nathan Owens, the Batwoman Co-Star, comes, "Home for the Holidays" in Ion's movie, "The Christmas Sitters." Two parents who face flight delays on a return trip from Europe double book two incompatible baby sitters to look after their dog and two kids. The dad's guitarist half-brother, Max, played by Nathan Owens, and the mother's BFF lawyer friend, Nora, played by Tristin Mays, get off to a rocky start, but soon, things get exciting, and an attraction grows.

Nathan John Owens is an American actor, model, and producer and best known for his portrayal of Cameron Davies on the soap opera Days of Our Lives.

He's also a series regular as Jesse Morgan on the Lifetime comedy-drama series, Devious Maids. His character in this series is described as a handsome military vet who returned to the US and settled back into civilian life.

Owens was born in Daly City, CA, and went to school in the bay for a time before moving to Sacramento, where he went to school in the Natomas and Roseville areas. An outstanding student-athlete, he maintained an excellent GPA while also captain of both Basketball and Volleyball teams.
