

Nuclear Science and Politics: A Complicated Fusion

An important scientific discovery can dictate the politics of an entire nation

COOKSTOWN, NEW JERSEY, USA, January 12, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- How far can science go when pushing its frontiers, and how much involvement should the government have on scientific research? Today, these questions continue to be relevant, and their answers can change the world in profound ways and on a large scale. These same questions are things that Dr. John D. King's novel, Just Out of Curiosity, tries to explore and answer.

Just Out of Curiosity

The story starts with graduate student Robert Navajo, whose description of a method of separating isotopes from specific metals inspires his faculty mentor to try it on uranium. This experiment brings about disastrous results, setting off a series of events that will cause the FBI to chase after Navajo, who escapes to a totalitarian South American state named Angustia. There, he gets a second chance at love, but he also gets into more trouble than he has ever imagined.

This story will keep readers hooked with its masterful narration of Navajo's thrilling exploits and endear science enthusiasts and experts with its use of legitimate facts related to nuclear science and weaponry. Those who get a kick out of political fiction mixed with science will enjoy this delightful read.

Dr. John D. King was born in Abilene, Kansas, and was a pathologist for several years in Rockford and in Peoria, Illinois. He served for two years in the Army Air Corps before getting an MD degree at the University of Kansas. He now lives in Austin, Texas, and has a wife, a daughter, and several grandchildren. Although Dr. King has an interest in biochemistry, it played only a little role in the creation of this exhilarating work of fiction.

About Writers' Branding

Writers' Branding is a full-service self-publishing company that provides aspiring authors exclusive access to publicity and a pool of book evaluators and marketing creatives and bridges them to literary agencies and traditional publishing houses.

Please visit www.writersbranding.com for more information.

Writers' Branding

Writers' Branding

+1 800-608-6550

email us here

Visit us on social media:

Facebook

Twitter

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/534397245>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

© 1995-2021 IPD Group, Inc. All Right Reserved.