In the words of Sonia J Chawla, co-founder Mommywize, "Ours is not solely a motherhood and parenting advice website. This unique website is by a mom and for all moms out there trying to carve a niche for themselves.

I understand the various struggles a woman goes through to accomplish her ambition, especially after motherhood. I know that support is very important to help a mom re-build that lost confidence in herself during motherhood. We intend to bring moms together to provide support to each other in every stage of life.

Now we are also exploring various opportunities to develop Mommywize further. Venturing into mom influencer marketing campaigns is one such initiative. Products, when promoted by our ever-expanding community of mom-influencers, can stimulate the audience well to get your product the required optimum reach.

Next, we also intend to bring specialists on our panel like doctors, psychologists, experienced moms, and others for live sessions on Facebook. We are brainstorming many such ideas that we will implement gradually. The response received so far is overwhelming, and we can't thank all the beautiful moms for all their love and support."

So, anyone looking to do influencer marketing via mom influencers must surely consider Mommywize and its powerful influencers network.

The objective is to make Mommywize a destination for brands that cater to moms and kids' products like baby care products, toys, educational products, women essentials, beauty products, home appliances, home décor items and more.
