Thanks for watching The High Life, the dopest show on Earth!”

Stevie Stoner

Keeping in tune with the theme of Jamaica, Brekan's new stoner comedy follows the adventures of "Stevie Stoner." Stevie is the lead singer of the reggae band, the Supatoonz, and lives the high life, 24 hours a day seven days a week. For Stevie, it's 4:20 forever. Brekan, an emerging television actor with appearances on NCIS, Westworld, and Baskets, plays the lead character, Stevie Stoner.

"I co-created the show with my wife and studio partner Theresa Brekan", states Brekan. The Brekan's own and operate Artorama Studios, a boutique animation studio focused on limited 2D cartoon animation. When it came to casting, both Brekan and his wife saw the importance of inclusiveness and cast Jamaican voice actors Brent Onenuh and Damion Graham to play the roles of fictional reggae musicians "Rasta Ron" and "Reggae Mon". Both actors debut on national television in this unique animated stoner comedy full of rasta culture, reggae music and marijuana humor.
