

Dr. Ellen R. Cohn to Speak on the Role of Teletherapy in a Post-COVID World

In the world of therapy services, COVID-19 will have created a new normal for both clients and clinicians.

LEHI, UTAH, UNITED STATES, January 22, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- On Feb. 4, 1978, ATM usage languished. Consumers, suspicious of fraud, rejected ATMs in favor of in-person banking. Fast forward to Feb. 5, 1978, when 17 inches of snow fell on New York City within 24 hours. People desperately needed access to their cash, but hardly anything was open –not even the banks. And then came the transformation! Citibank began running television ads, showing one person frantically banging on the door of a closed bank during a blizzard –while another calmly extracted cash from an ATM. The slogan “The Citi Never Sleeps” was born. Now, in early 2021, humanity finds itself attempting to climb out of the greatest public health crisis since 1918. Once again, a previously available but under-appreciated service delivery method has been drafted into action. This presentation will discuss the fundamentals of teletherapy & telerehabilitation and why it will continue to thrive in a post-COVID world.
