TBRC's investment banking industry outlook states that investment banks are focusing on mergers and acquisitions to expand their product offerings and increase their share in the market. Large investment banking firms are acquiring boutique firms (small firms which are specialized in various fields) which cater to specific industries such as technology, health care, financial sector, media, and entertainment. The presence of a large number of small firms focusing on niche markets is offering significant opportunities for larger investment banking firms. This is driving the M&A activity in the investment banking industry, and such investment banking market trends drive the market.

The global investment banking market size is expected to grow from $102.84 billion in 2020 to $111.45 billion in 2021 at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.4%. The growth is mainly due to the companies rearranging their operations and recovering from the COVID-19 impact, which had earlier led to restrictive containment measures involving social distancing, remote working, and the closure of commercial activities that resulted in operational challenges. According to investment banking market analysis, the market is expected to reach $137.97 billion in 2025 at a CAGR of 5%.

The regions covered in the global investment banking market are Asia-Pacific, Western Europe, Eastern Europe, North America, South America, Middle East, Africa. North America is the largest region in the global investment banking market, accounting for 46% of the market in 2020. Asia Pacific is the second largest region accounting for 26% of the global market. Eastern Europe was the smallest region in the global investment banking market.
