LOS ANGELES, CA, USA, January 22, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ --

International diversity speaker and philanthropist Didi Wong stars in an award-winning inspirational movie, “Impact,” which premiered on Thursday and has already been nominated for 12 international film awards and has won 6 awards.

The movie profiles three people who overcame tremendous disadvantages to lead successful lives that will inspire others.

It is time for women to rise up, to have a voice, to be heard, and to claim the more powerful positions in our country and the world.”

“My father said, ‘You will never make it in America,’ she said. “I came to America against my family’s wishes and became a recognized keynote speaker in just four years.

She has spoken at the United Nations and was presented the “Women of the Decade” award for entrepreneurship and Venture Capital from the Women Economic Forum.

The movie shows her starting out as a speaker and stumbling when rehearsing a speech to her four young children.

“When you master the art of articulation, you will experience a whole lot more yeses,” she said.

“Like Kamala Harris, I want to inspire people to speak up and be bold. I want to show that any minority female can face their adversities and come out on the other end as a trusted name, resource, mentor, and successful entrepreneur," she said.

"It is time for women to rise up, to have a voice, to be heard, and to claim the more powerful positions in our country and the world. I strive to be the most recognized Asian female speaker in the U.S. and in the world and to pave the way for the younger female generation to succeed on a greater scale," she said.
