

Biotech Showcase™ Extends On-demand Access to this Year's Sessions, Content and Company Presentations through March 2021

Biotech Industry Thought Leaders, Investors Gathered Last Week to Forecast Year Ahead in Growth and Investment

NEW YORK, NY, UNITED STATES, January 26, 2021 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In its 13th year, Biotech Showcase™ Digital welcomed more than 2,500 attendees, 850 investors, and 330 presenting companies last week in a virtual format to explore impactful trends, engage insightful personalities, learn about innovative companies, and meet motivated investors. Working together to drive the future of drug development, this year's participants engaged in more than 50 program sessions and panels, as well as more than 47,000 partnering meeting requests delivered through the partneringONE® meeting platform.

For the first time, conference organizers have provided on-demand access to all company presentations and other content through March 31, 2021 for all pre- and post-conference registrants. Post-event registration is available to those wishing to access all recorded sessions and content. Those interested in accessing it can simply log-in with their registration information, or new registrants need simply register at the Biotech Showcase Digital website.

This year's program featured timely, highly relevant, inclusive and diverse sessions focused on therapeutics and policies to address COVID-19. A list of all speakers is available here with many high-profile leaders including the following:

Biotech Showcase 2021

Demy-Colton and EBD Group co-produce the investor conference that drives the future of biotech innovation, digital medicine, and international collaboration each year. In just the past five years, 250 companies that presented at Biotech Showcase have generated deals worth more than $61 Billion.

“For so many years, this has been one of the most important business weeks during the calendar year when industry participants flock to San Francisco to network. This year’s Biotech Showcase demonstrated that the power of those connections and learnings doesn’t halt just because travel does,” said Sara Jane Demy, founder and CEO, Demy-Colton. “The overwhelmingly positive response from the audience, participants and sponsors shows us that the innovation in our digital delivery of these incredible thought leaders is surpassed only by the inspiring innovation we see across our biotech industry.”

Tina Gunnink, Managing Director, EBD Group US, added, “Despite moving to a digital format this year, Biotech Showcase attracted an amazing response from presenting companies and investors, resulting in a remarkable level of engagement. Our plenary sessions and workshops were extremely popular and focused on how investments and partnerships will evolve and affect the life science and healthcare landscape. Biotech Showcase remains one of the largest investor conferences for the life sciences’ most innovative companies and is a particularly pivotal touchpoint for those looking for partnerships and investment.”

The date for next year’s Biotech Showcase has been set for January 10-12, 2022 in San Francisco. For more information, please visit www.biotechshowcase.com or follow us on Twitter at @Demy_Colton and @EBDGroup.
