We are thrilled to partner with MATTER and continue pursuing innovative solutions to make chronic neurological care more affordable, effective and accessible”

company enabling personalized remote care for chronic neurological conditions, has joined MATTER, the global healthcare incubator and innovation hub headquartered in Chicago, IL.

With its nEureka® Remote Care Hub for epilepsy and other chronic neurological disorders, Novela seeks to transform current episodic care towards continuous solutions, creating a “nEureka® Lifestyle” that empowers those with neurological conditions to live freely and pursue their dreams.

“Novela has always been committed to bringing back independence and peace of mind for millions of patients living with chronic neurological conditions. Compared to other healthcare fields such as diabetes, neurological care has lagged behind. We are thrilled to partner with MATTER and continue pursuing innovative solutions to make chronic neurological care more affordable, effective and accessible,” said Dr. Parisa Sabetian, Chief Scientific Officer and Co-Founder of Novela.

MATTER mobilizes a global community of healthcare innovators committed to improving the health and care of every patient.

“Our mission of empowering those with neurological disorders closely aligns with MATTER’s goals of improving lives through innovative healthcare. We look forward to gaining perspectives from and contributing to MATTER’s diverse community, to the benefit of patients in search of effective and effortless chronic neurological care and an independent lifestyle,” said Dr. Aiman Abdel-Malek, President and Chief Strategy Officer of Novela.

“We’re absolutely delighted to welcome Novela to the MATTER community and be part of their journey to scale the development and adoption of their solution for patients with neurological conditions,” said Courtney Zhu, Venture Acceleration Manager at MATTER.
